If government rules allow, there may also be services in Christ Church on Sundays and services in St John's or All Saints at 3pm. The Prime Minister has just imposed new rules for Christmas so everything in January is unpredictable.

Please see website or contact other church members to find out what is happening.

The reason the Son of God appeared

The arrival of a baby brings celebration. What a joy to hold a new-born baby! What promise for the future! What fascination with their development! What sleepless nights! All this and more surrounded the birth the son born to Joseph and Mary who they named Jesus.

The arrival of Jesus would have a highly dramatic impact. It is summed up by John in one of his letters to the early church. John talks about Christmas twice in just a few lines of his letter. He sets Jesus' birth on the larger stage of history. It was Jesus' appearing (epiphany) which is so important. He has two things to say.

John first begins with a reminder: 'You know that he appeared in order to take away sins, and in him there is no sin' (I John 3v5). Jesus came to make reconciliation with God a reality. We are born as rebels who are living as enemies of God and unresponsive to His love. Yet when Jesus laid down his love, for the sins of the world, he provided a new way of approach to God. The dire situation that existed required extreme measures at great cost to bring us back to God. The cross made this possible so that we can become children of God.

His second idea is also important: 'The reason the Son of God appeared was to destroy the works of the devil' (I John 3v8). The works of the devil that Jesus came to destroy are the works of sin. Jesus is at work in his followers to draw us away from leading a lawless life and inspire us to live the new looking-more-like-Christ life. There is a divine discontent in the heart of every believer so that they want to grow in their own Christ-likeness. We increasingly see things the way He does and want to follow his ways rather than our own or those of the world.

May I encourage you to make 2021 count? Dedicate yourself to following Jesus more closely, to read the Bible each day and pray about what you read. To be following Jesus is the right response to the celebrations at the end of last year. His birth means we have life.

Ian Morgan

It is with sadness that we pass on the news that Ian Morgan died on Monday 30th November. Ian grew up in Leicestershire but moved to Stone after qualifying as a teacher. He was a Reader for 40 years, 20 of which were spent serving at Christ Church and in the benefice from 1980 to 2000. Ian was a teacher at (then) Christ Church Middle School for many years beginning in the 1970's, where he taught Woodwork (Design Technology etc later on) and was Head of Year 8. He gained his degree via the Open University. In fact he was one of the original members of staff when the school became a Middle School in 1974. When the Middle School started, for the first time girls as well as boys were allowed to do Woodwork and this made news in local newspapers at the time. Other teachers from the time remember that Ian was very caring towards any child with problems and did his best to help them.

While in Stone he demonstrated the skills he was teaching by building his own house extension. He also taught evening classes in Eccleshall.

Ian had a distinctive sermon-preaching style; he never spoke for long but always left his hearers wanting more, and asking him questions afterwards.

After leaving Stone he moved to the south of England and then to Grange-over-Sands. Our thoughts and prayers at this time are with his wife Heather and daughters Frances, Hilary and Alison.

New Year Messages

Compassion Childcare have selected Bible passages for the new year.

There's lots of wisdom about blessings in the Bible. At the start of a new year, these Bible verses help us remember that every good gift comes from God our Heavenly Father.

- James 1:17 Every good and perfect gift is from above, coming down from the Father of the heavenly lights, who does not change like shifting shadows.
- Philippians 4:19 And my God will meet all your needs according to the riches of his glory in Christ Jesus.
- Psalm 1:1-3 Blessed is the one who does not walk in step with the wicked or stand in the way that sinners take or sit in the company of mockers, but whose delight is in the law of the Lord, and who meditates on his law day and night.
- 2 Corinthians 9:8 And God is able to bless you abundantly, so that in all things at all times, having all that you need, you will abound in every good work.
- Jeremiah 17:7 But blessed is the one who trusts in the Lord, whose confidence is in him. James 1:17 Every good and perfect gift is from above, coming down from the Father of the heavenly lights, who does not change like shifting shadows.
- Lamentations 3:22-24 Because of the Lord's great love we are not consumed, for his compassions never fail. They are new every morning; great is your faithfulness.
- Jeremiah 29:11 For I know the plans I have for you," declares the Lord, "plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future.
- 2 Corinthians 4:17-18 For our light and momentary troubles are achieving for us an eternal glory that far outweighs them all. 18 So we fix our eyes not on what is seen, but on what is unseen, since what is seen is temporary, but what is unseen is eternal.
- Ecclesiastes 3:1 There is a time for everything, and a season for every activity under the heavens.

Confession

When the word "Acts" is used to help us understand parts of prayer, the letter "C" stands for Confession.

Tom had just retrieved his football from his dad's greenhouse and now he and his two friends stood glumly looking at the glass they had broken by playing football on the lawn which Tom's dad had expressly forbidden. "Dad will kill me", said Tom, as his friends left the scene. Tom thought it best to tell his dad as soon as possible and face the consequences. After the confession father and son looked at the damage together. Then Dad just said "OK son we'll get it fixed tomorrow...oh...and thanks for telling me". Both father and son felt good. The father knows how much his son trusts him, and Tom is even more aware of his dad's love.

Confession is not a punishment - it's a therapy. St James writes about this at the end of his practical letter. Having given instructions about elders of the church anointing sick people for healing, he goes on to link confession and healing. (Chapter 5:16a)

Therefore confess your sins to each other and pray for each other so that you may be healed.

As a relationship between two people deepens, it is not uncommon for one of them to say "before we go any further there are some things I need to get off my chest" (Remember our heart, is in our chest!). The person knows that the loving relationship can only develop where there is heartfelt openness and frankness.

Our prayer relationship with God is no different. God is all knowing. Confession actually starts with a loving act of God. In John 16:7 Jesus describes the Holy Spirit is "another Counsellor". A good human counsellor initiates a conversation that will help their client give voice about how and why they behave in the way they do and to understand its consequences. The Holy Spirit helps us see our actions from God's point of view and our confession is agreeing with what He has told us in our minds.

Many find accepting the forgiveness even more difficult than confession. We know that sin is not a trivial matter. We can't fix it like replacing a greenhouse window. Mending our sinful brokenness can only be done by God, with an infinite act of love. This, of course, takes place on the cross. It is here that Jesus shows us the full extent of God's love and forgiveness for us. He cries out.

"Father, forgive them,
for they do not know what they are doing"

Holding on to the sin after confessing it, is like saying to God "I believe my sin is greater than all the love you showed us through the crucifixion and resurrection of your only Son Our Lord Jesus Christ".

The Cross shows us the cost of forgiveness, and the Resurrection shows us how wonderfully possible it is.

Sin infects the whole of humanity. Yes God loves me as a Father loves his child. But in today's individualistic "me culture" we must never forget that

"God so loved the world that he gave his one and only Son, that whoever believes in him shall not perish but have eternal life". (John 3:16)

Not only do I need the personal one to one relationship that confession and forgiveness brings, but I also need to remember my part in an infected humanity. That's why Jesus taught us to pray as a community of faith

Forgive us our sins,
as we forgive those who sin against us.

Roger Vaughan

His coming Celebrated at
The darkest time of year
Before the earth unfolds
Its miracle of reflowering
And the shadows linger
Longest fingers over the strangled days

He chose
To live our darkness
For us –
The Creator
Confined
In the constrictions of the womb.
He who spoke the world
Into being –
Silenced –
Listening to another's heartbeat

He lived
With those in darkness
The untouchables
Disfigured by disease,
The possessed
Cast out,
The poor, the lame, the blind,
Brought
Good News –
To those few who'd hear

He died
In darkness
Quite alone
Having suffered alone
Taken his last solitary breath alone,
His tomb
Shuttered in darkness.

And
If he chose
The darkness
For our sake
How certain we can be
His Promised Presence with us
Our Emmanuel
In times of Longest Night.

Canon Jack Bell

Jack Bell was born in 1923 in Blackburn, his parents were mill workers at the time but later they owned and ran a grocery store. He attended Queen Elizabeth Grammar School and left in 1941 with Higher School Certificate in science subjects. He applied to join the RAF but failed the medical- he never knew why exactly as he was a keen footballer. He got a job in a local chemicals factory so when summoned to do war work, told them he was a Pharmacist. The authorities told him that was a reserved profession, so he should continue in it. Later he heard that the official had written down that he was a Farm Assistant! He spent the rest of the war working in chemical production needed for the war effort in Runcorn and Springfields (now part of UKAEA). In 1945 he studied at night school and obtained a B.Sc in chemistry in 1949. Now working for ICI, he gave up a promising career in chemistry to join China Inland Mission (Hudson Taylor's mission society) and attended their college in London for a year, learning Mandarin. I remember he told me that the worst thing about CIM was that they had to go to a Chinese restaurant once a week- in 1949, many people would have thought that the highlight of the week! Dad never ate Chinese food again after leaving the college! He would have gone out to China in 1950 but the revolution in China intervened, all British missionaries were expelled and soon CIM halted field placements. After a short time on the staff of St. Mark's Haydock, he felt called to the ministry and was accepted into Oak Hill Theological College in 1951.

CIM had told all members of the mission that they could not marry as it was not safe to take a family to China, so Dad entertained no romantic thoughts. But now free of that, he asked Elsie Holden to marry him and they were married in 1955 just before Dad took up a curacy in Oldham. His first parish as Rector was St. Jerome and St. Silas, Ardwick, Manchester. This was a parish of terraced houses and a lot of poverty. Dad helped run a tramp shelter under a railway arch and on Saturdays would call at local shops to collect leftover food for the shelter. The church had a very large but rather dilapidated hall, built in 1912 to accommodate 800 Sunday School children but I remember that I was one of about 90 Sunday School children in the 1960's, so we had plenty of space. Most of the parish of St Jerome's has now been demolished and rebuilt, and the old 19th century street names are gone.

In 1969 we moved to St. John's Mosley Common where Dad was vicar of St. John's church until he retired in 1989, that was his longest period at a church. In Mosley Common there is a church school and Dad was on very good terms with the headteacher Geoff Swift, some of whose relatives are members of Christ Church Stone. He started Sunday School during morning services. At St. John's he also started house groups which helped many in their faith. After retiring from Mosley Common my parents moved to Kendal where he helped lead services in rural churches in Ings, Crook and Helsington, and then spent six years in Stone where they attended Christ Church until 2017 when their health declined. My parents' last years were spent in The Chimes care home in Penkull where they were well looked after. Dave Bell

The Worn Step

As a teenager I attended a beautiful old Norfolk church. It had the traditional round tower covered in flintstones. Parts of the church dated from Norman times and the ornate woodwork was Jacobean. There were many interesting and unusual features of the church but what always made the most impression on me was the step.

As you entered the church through the south porch and opened the ancient door you needed to take care because the stone step into church was hollowed away with the passage of feet over the centuries.

I marvelled at how such a solid piece of stone could be so worn away and I marvelled at the number of people who had gone through that door. Thousands of people had, over time, made their way into that church to worship our saviour.

The verses in Hebrews 12 say it all:

Therefore, since we are surrounded by such a great cloud of witnesses, let us throw of everything that hinders and the sin that so easily entangles, and let us run with perseverance the race marked out for us. Let us fix our eyes on Jesus...

Hebrews talks of the great patriarchs and their faith, a faith that has continued throughout time as the step reminded me. When we are tempted to give up, we need to remind ourselves of all those who have gone before us trusting in our Lord. Enid
