An anchor for the soul

Many people find that this month spells change. Change is something that can be welcomed or is found to be unsettling. Whichever of these experiences it is, we need an anchor!

After a time of flux in the housing market people move home and begin to settle. Others start new jobs after a summer break. Schools start a new term and sixth form colleges roar into action and encourage students to look to the horizon as to what comes next. Apprentices have to adjust to a mixture of work and study time. University students often move away from home for the first time with mixed emotions about the leaving the nest. Others join new study courses or evening classes or join clubs for a new term. Several find that their medical health care can soon dominate the week. These are all significant changes to navigate. Where do we find stability in what may well feel like riding through a storm? We need a secure line so that we don't go adrift.

One writer in the Bible uses a picture that is not used elsewhere: the picture of an anchor. But, instead of this going down to the ocean bed, this anchor reaches up into heaven: 'we have this hope as an anchor for the soul, firm and secure. It enters the inner sanctuary behind the curtain, where Jesus, who went before us, has entered on our behalf. He has become a high priest forever, in the order of Melchizedek' (Heb 6v19). For all believers this speaks clearly of how Jesus has gone before us, to secure our salvation in heaven. It means that we are to put our full trust and confidence in him.

This 'anchor' of salvation in Christ, enables us to face the changes in life. For a school pupil or university student who is anxious about the new term, there is the assurance of Jesus the high priest who is can sympathise with us and will provide us with help. For those who have a change of work or location they can be sure of a secure relationship with God. For those facing an uncertain path ahead, they know that Jesus has secured the future. For those feeling that their health is on the wobble, Jesus provides true hope.

An anchor for the soul is provided in Jesus.

Paul Kingman

Dear Friends,

I notice that charity law in the United Kingdom is changing in order to ensure that donors and recipients of charity are both protected. The Charity Commission is currently engaged in a consultation process on how to update the law. That is something we should all welcome. The consultation process has raised a number of issues for churches and other faith groups, as Frank Cranmer has commented: "The importance of all this for faith-groups cannot be underestimated. Whether their trusts are registered with the Commission or not, charity trustees are obliged to demonstrate that their charities provide public benefit." This 'demonstration of public benefit' is something you have heard from me from the outset. In my Enthronement sermon, referring to what Jesus said (in John 15) about our bearing fruit when we "abide in the vine", I asked: "So what is this 'fruit' that the Church should be producing? It's not easy to get at what Jesus is saying. Imagine walking around a garden asking questions. What's that tree for? It's beautiful, there's a swing hanging from it and it gives good shade. What's that dahlia for? It's bright and cheerful and the bees love it. What's that weed for? A weed is a plant in the wrong place so I'll pull it up. What's that vine for? For grapes to eat or turn into wine. So when Jesus makes comments about bearing fruit, he's really forcing you to ask: 'What on earth is the Church for?' The simple answer lies in the two unconditional priorities for all three Abrahamic faiths: God and people – 'Love God, love your neighbour'. Unquestionably, the Church's priorities lie outside her walls. An introverted church is a sham, not a church at all, because it doesn't attempt to live up to God's priorities. A church that's bothered about itself – about the needs of its congregation, about its buildings, about its petty squabbles, even about its own salvation – is preaching a badly distorted un-gospel."

I'm delighted that people outside the Church are asking the same question: 'What is the Church for?'

However, I'm sad to say from experience that some will answer the question like this:

- It's there for me and my soul's comfort.
- It's there because I have put money and effort into it.
- It's there because I need it to be there until I'm in the churchyard.
- It's there simply to grow bigger.
- It's there to raise money for the building.
- It's there to be serious or fun or relevant or musical or whatever I myself want it to be.

All those answers are all wrong because there is just one true answer in two parts:

- The Church is there for God, and
- The Church is there for other people.

God, worshipped through the Lord Jesus Christ and made present in the Holy Spirit always comes first. Then, without any break, comes love for the world which God created and redeemed through the life, death and resurrection of his Son. If those are not our priorities, the absolute standard of our life in the Church, then one day we will be judged and found wanting. Even the law will judge us if we fail in love for others, and it will serve us right if the law says any of our congregations have become introverted and self-contented. So what is your church for? – it's something worth discussing.

Your own in Christ, + Robert. (Bishop of Sodor and Man)

Christian Aid collections 2017

The amount of donations for this year collected by volunteers around Stone and the surrounding areas came to £8910.29 plus the money raised on the Christian Aid annual walk and afternoon teas, which brings the total to over £9000. The money was used to pay for latrines in South Sudan, helping to prevent the spread of disease.

At Christ Church only 10 streets were collected from this year, but the amount collected, including some envelopes given in to the office, was still significant, £469.10p.

Thank you to those who took part. Phil Tunstall

Horrible Histories meets Monty Python in this hilarious new historical comedy from the award-winning co-writer of Miranda, Bluestone 42, Another Case of Milton Jones and Edinburgh Fringe 2013 hit The God Particle.

A Monk's Tale.

A new play by James Cary.

With original music and lyrics by James Sherwood.

On Tour from the Edinburgh Fringe 2017.

Written to mark the 500th anniversary of the Reformation, A Monk's Tale is a fast-paced hour-long gallop through the circumstances and causes which led to one of Europe's greatest social and political upheavals. Using sketches and songs, the talented three-person cast lead us through a heady mix of corruption and crusades, popes and purgatory, sacraments and (burning at the) stakes, indulgences and indignation, and much much more – fuelled by the unstoppable social media of its day, the all-new Printing Press.

Witty and entertaining, with plenty of laugh out loud moments, this is Reformation history as you have never seen it before – suitable for all ages from 8 to 108 and for those of any faith or none at all.

Historic Churches Cycle Ride

Ride and Stride is an annual event to raise funds for the Staffordshire Historic Churches Trust. On Saturday 9th September, many Staffordshire churches will be open and the idea is to be sponsored for the number of churches visited on that day.

Our church will be open, needing welcomers. Sandra and Chris Morray, and Helen are regular cycling participants and Sheila and Dorothy have walked in and around Stafford. Ask any of these people for more information.

Truth 2017

I met with Philip Sowerbutts, vicar of Castle Church Stafford and their youth worker several months ago to discuss and plan a Youth event for the 16th of September at Shallowford House. As we were brain-storming ideas of what the event would seek to communicate we knew we wanted talks and messages for the youth that would be relevant to them. We wanted to be able to address questions about the truth of the Bible and also topics such as sexual purity in a pornography saturated culture. We wanted something simply catchy and memorable. Young people don't read posters that are very wordy. The poster was to rather be a calling card to a website where youth and parents could read more about the event.

Names were either too long or uninteresting. We settled for Truth 2017. The truth is what we really want to communicate. The "Truth" about the Bible, The "Truth" about sexuality etc.

What keeps Christianity relevant is not a trend or the ability to be within the cultural mainstream. What keeps Christianity relevant is the reality is that it is TRUE. The truth will always be relevant.

The goal is to have 100 young people attend and to see this project grow as the years progress. A website is still under construction and more information will be made public later.

What can be confirmed is that there will be Bible teaching and plenty of outdoor activities such as archery, climbing, shooting, zip wire and tractor rides. Also a BBQ!

So make sure to save the date the 16th of September and spread the word. Will have more information soon!

Roger ponders “FPV” technology

I very much doubt if many of you have even heard of “FPV” - unless, that is, you happen to fly expensive drones or specially equipped model aircraft. Quite simply a video camera allows the pilot to see what is directly in front of the unmanned aircraft system.

This is transmitted by an RF link to a computer or to special goggles worn by the pilot. In the latter case, the pilot feels that they are flying from an onboard perspective. FPV simply stands for First Person View.

The system has enormous potential. For example, in 2015, staff at Salisbury Cathedral used an FPV equipped drone to inspect the roof space and magnificent spire of the building. However, misuse of the system can raise problems, like near misses of full size commercial aircraft which have been in the news recently.

I encounter problems when FPV flyers come to our model flying club. Model flyers keep an eye open for other models in the air. Often, the first notion that a FPV flyer has of another model flying nearby is when he sees it in his headset...and by then its usually too late!

This set me thinking. How often do I live my life in “FPV mode”?

Self absorbed, I am often unaware of the people around me. In the church context, do I notice the new comer? Do I see the young mum, with a pram and toddler struggling to open the hall door, and with a smile push the door open for her?

On the flying field I don't tell my friends how to prepare or fly their models. However as a responsible club member I am aware of the other models in the air at the same time. In much the same way I do not want to intrude on other peoples lives, but simply be ready to respond to them should they need it.

Maybe, in our personal lives, we should try to make one simple alteration to the FPV acronym. Instead of FPV standing for First Person View, can we, with God's help, change it to Friendly Person View?!

Everybody Welcome

The "Everybody Welcome" coffee mornings are running again during the summer months (2 September). As well as free coffee/tea and cakes, there have been many who have enjoyed the live music in church which we plan to repeat on each Saturday. The aim is to welcome people into our church building — for the first time, or if they have been away for a long time. We will be leafleting people at the Farmers' Market and having free refreshments and an open church, with church members around to welcome all those who come.

Please put these dates in your diary/calendar and pray for those who come to them. Also, if you are a church member, please be prepared to think "Free Coffee Morning" and perhaps invite a neighbour to come with you; or, if you go to the Farmer's Market and meet someone you know invite them. If you are reading this article and do not come to church we would love to meet you. Shirley Hallam

More than a Refugee

Although the news headlines may have largely moved on from the refugee crisis, the reality is that the situation is more desperate than ever.

This is a second portrait of a refugee from the prayer section of the Tearfund website.

Name: David

Country of origin: South Sudan (Yei)

Current location: South Sudan (Juba)

Stat: Of the estimated 65.3 million displaced people in the world, 38.2 million are Internally Displaced Persons (IDPs). IDPs are people who have been forced from their homes, but either from choice or circumstances have stayed in their own country. David, aged 19, from Yei in South Sudan is an IDP. Yei was a vibrant town. David had an excellent start in life; his parents were successful farmers. They had enough to feed their family and sell for profit. David had big plans for his future. He said 'I want to be a mechanical engineer and repair things'. His plans had to be put on hold when armed men came to Yei and started killing indiscriminately.

The family gathered for an emergency prayer meeting and decided to flee to the capital, Juba. They travelled in a crowded open truck, taking 4 days for a day's journey in normal times. It was a dangerous trip and the children were very frightened. 'We were in God's hands' said David.

They arrived in Juba safely, but David's father now struggles to pay the rent and feed his family. Tearfund are helping - providing food vouchers and cash for the family, as well as seeds, tools and training.

In spite of his experiences, David's faith remains strong: 'As a young man, you are not supposed to go through experiences like this, but with God's help you can make it through'.

His name has been changed for security reasons.*

Please pray: Lord Jesus, give us more of your compassion for the plight of refugees, soften our hearts to their situation and help us to follow your lead in seeking justice on their behalf.

Pray for an end to all wars, poverty and human rights abuses that drive desperate people to become refugees in the first place. Amen

THE SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

By the kind and ready permission of the Earl of Harrowby, our Sunday Schools again went to Sandon Park for their annual excursion. On the morning of Saturday, August 15th-a beautifully fine day-the Christ Church and Stonefield Schools assembled at 11 o'clock in the churchyard, and marched in high spirits and with flags flying to the station; there the little contingent from Meaford School met us with their pretty little banner. The waiting time passed, and cheering greeted the arrival of the long-wished-for train. We were soon in and off. At Sandon we re-formed and marched to the allotted ground in the park. After a few words of caution and congratulation they dispersed to enter with their usual zest into the several games and amusements provided. The teachers became the centres of attraction to groups of happy faces. Luncheon was at 1 o'clock. The children, arranged in parallel lines, were quickly served, and ate as only children can.

During the afternoon we were glad to welcome many members of the congregation; most of the elder scholars also joined us at this time, and Mr. Woods' capital Brass Band. Tea was at five o'clock, when the hungry and thirsty were again satisfied. At 7.40 we returned to Stone, and, headed by the band, marched to our church, where, after a few words expressing thankfulness to the Giver of all good gifts for the very happy day, the National Anthem was sung, and, amid cheering for all kind friends, the scholars dispersed to their homes.

"We would here thank our subscribers and those who collected, as well as those who lent things necessary for tea, etc.
