I hope that you survived Choc Fest – the chocolate festival formerly known as Easter. One confectionary company made the positive move to produce The Real Easter Egg with its extra thick chocolate (palm oil and plastic free!) and a colourful story booklet inside to tell you about the real Easter with a competition to win a prize. I'm not on commission for mentioning it, but it is a feature of the world in which we live that we need a reminder of what is real. We've celebrated the most amazing event in history by remembering the resurrection of Jesus – we have eyewitness accounts that have changed people's lives for the last 2000 years because it was for real! Surely nothing can top that?

Sorry to disappoint, but six weeks on towards the end of the month is an even greater festival. It's not as popular commercially, which is possibly why it has become something of the Cinderella service: last in line and on a low budget. It's Ascension Day: the day Jesus returned to heaven. What happened? Why is it important?

The risen Jesus appeared to many: he was touched, he walked, talked, ate food with his followers and was seen by a large group of 500. His final instructions to his disciples were to wait in Jerusalem to be empowered by the Holy Spirit and then go out to spread the gospel worldwide. The report is brief: 'And when he had said these things, as they were looking on, he was lifted up, and a cloud took him out of their sight' (Acts 1v9). The brevity of the description doesn't flag up the significance. The rest of the New Testament details Jesus' completed work and ongoing ministry from heaven so that we can receive mercy and grace. But there is a tailpiece not to overlook: 'And while they were gazing into heaven as he went, behold, two men stood by them in white robes, and said, "Men of Galilee, why do you stand looking into heaven? This Jesus, who was taken up from you into heaven, will come in the same way as you saw him go into heaven." (Acts 1v10-11).

The ascension of Jesus was bodily and visible, as it was for real. The return of Jesus will be bodily and visible, as it will be for real. We are to live in the light of this great hope as we spread the word and live for the risen, reigning and returning Lord Jesus.

Trains in the garden

Trains ran again in Pete and Liz's garden on Saturday 16th April (Easter Saturday). Quite a lot of cake was eaten and £730 was raised for Jigsaw Kids Ministry in Manila. Thanks to everyone who came, helped and bought cake.

Gospel Growth

Becoming a Faith-Filled Person

The studies focus is on the role of faith in the transformation of Christians by the power of the gospel. In this ten-session series we will cover topics including living by faith, spiritual disciplines, faith and repentance, the power of the Spirit, and how identifying with the suffering, death, and resurrection of Christ grows us to be like Christ. Study guide £7.99 orders to Paul no later than Sunday 24th April. Please also let me know whether we can meet in person or prefer to do so by zoom. We will plan to meet at 6pm unless those interested agree another time that is better.

Paul Kingman

Holiday Club

We would love to know if you are interested and able to help with running a children's holiday club at the end of August. The set up would be Monday 29th August then running the rest of the week to Friday 2nd September. Please let us know.

Paul and Sue Kingman

Hope Explored

There are few emotions more powerful than hope. It's a spark inside you that brings a smile to your lips; a light that shows on your face; a feeling that lifts your head and pulls you forward. Hope is what keeps us alive. But these days hope often feels hard to come by. Yet real hope is what the Christian faith claims to offer: a joyful expectation for the future, based on true events in the past, which changes everything about my present.

In three short sessions we will look at some of the words from Isaiah 9 about the promise of a future child being born who would be known as 'wonderful counsellor, mighty God, everlasting father, the prince of peace'. These words are fulfilled in Jesus Christ. They are the basis for Christian hope.

We will meet on Tuesdays at 7.30 pm at the vicarage on 26th April, 3rd & 10th May using a mixture of discussion and video input. Please contact me to reserve a place so that we can cater for you.

It's been a while! Almost a whole term passed since my last prayer letter, and it's been busy, both with the excitement of student ministry and also personally. But with students beginning to head home for the Easter holidays, it's finally given me time to share what I've been up to and what's coming up! Matthew also announced his engagement to Rosie. We wish them all the best for their future life together.

The chisel and the Sculptor

A skilled wood carver surveys his latest partly finished work. Beside it on his bench are many chisels of different shapes and sizes. He carefully selects one and continues to carve.

The chisel has no idea what the final masterpiece will look like, but the creator has a clear vision in his mind of what he will achieve. After a few minutes the chisel is put down in a pile along with several other tools which have already been used. He picks up a different chisel which then lies passive in his hand ready for action.

The pile of blunt chisels is not forgotten, and after a while the craftsman gathers them together to be re-sharpened and made ready for the next phase in his work.

We share this mysterious work with many other Christians and need to come together regularly in worship to be "sharpened up" Do we start each day simply ready to be used as Our Father wishes? In this way we can be chosen again to carry out whatever task the Father's has in mind. Whether our part is large or small, it is valuable in establishing the Kingdom of God.

Map needed

We were lost, not totally lost you understand, we knew where we had come from and could easily have retraced our steps but we were perplexed. The instructions we had been given said "take the bridle path and follow the blue arrows". However the bridle path went more than one way and there were no blue arrows to be seen in any direction. What were we to do? We could easily return to the beginning of the walk but this was a circular walk and we had no wish to be defeated.

Being in the middle of a wood meant that we couldn't see very far ahead; we had a compass and there was a map sign board for the wood but it was more by trial and error that we found our way between the trees and out onto the other side of the wood. Even so we were not at the next place in our instructions so we were very pleased to see the monument which was definitely in the instructions.

Our five mile walk, that day, turned out to be 8 miles but we were happy to be out for the day seeing some beautiful scenery (when we were out of the woods!) It seems the instructions we were given were incomplete and we also needed a better map, which would certainly have helped.

In our daily lives we need directions, we may know where we have come from but do we know where we are going? What finer place to look than the Bible and what a wonderful verse there is in Psalm 119.

Often used as a memory verse in the days of Pathfinder camp and Sunday school these are words worth learning: "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path" Psalm 119 :105 or in a more modern version "Your word is a lamp for my feet and a light on my path".

Elizabeth

In the UK, we might be waking up to lighter mornings and warmer days, but families across the country are waking up to cold homes and empty stomachs as we face the greatest cost of living crisis we have known in our lifetimes. And because of this they wake up with fear.

Further afield, people are waking up to horrors they never imagined possible. Last month, President Zelensky gave a speech in which he said 'the end of the world has arrived'. Ukrainians have woken up to the end of the world as they knew it. Now they are awakened by the noises of war, and the sickening reality of terror. They wake up to mortal fear.

Imagine Mary's waking thoughts on that first Easter morning. Her state of mind must have been grim. The deepest desire for it all to be different. Anger at the disciples for running away. Misery at the thought of the task before her.

Such a sense of helplessness will have been common this morning. Many will be awakening in refugee camps, separated from loved ones still on the front line, grieving for those missing, raped, abused, or killed. Wondering how to cope. Mary and her companions did not know how to cope with the stone in front of the tomb. "What will we do?"

This bad awakening was justified. The tasks were impossible. The events of the past days traumatic. Strength could not meet the demand. For many in this country the news from Ukraine is terrible, but the rising cost of power, fuel and basic food will be the first and overwhelming thought of the day. For others it will be the continued deep sense of loss of someone from Covid, or during Covid, to whom they could not say a proper farewell. The news might move on, but grief does not.

Others will be struggling at work, or feel a deep sense of injustice at the way they have been mistreated by family, friends or employers. Sorrow is often a private burden, betrayal a private wound, grief and disappointment private agonies. We focus on the great events of the day in the news, rightly: yet every life has its own traumas, joys, celebrations and laments. The first Easter was experienced by individuals, not by the world on social media.

What does the resurrection of Jesus Christ have to say not just to our common fears, but to those that are individually felt?

First, God doesn't just recognise the horrors and the sufferings of the world: he enters into them on the Cross. In dying for us, he sees and knows the wounds that cause us so much pain. He hears the cry of the mothers in Ukraine, he sees the fear of boys too young to become soldiers, and he knows the vulnerability of the orphans and refugees. Closer to home, he sees the humiliation of the grandparent visiting the foodbank for the first time, the desperate choice of parents in poverty and the grief and weariness of the pandemic.

The resurrection of Jesus is not a magic wand that makes the world perfect. But the resurrection of Christ is the tectonic shift in the way the cosmos works. It is the conquest of death and the opening of eternal life, through Jesus a gift offered to every human being who reaches out to him. Not just for individuals, but setting a benchmark for every society because God is Lord of every society and nation.

This is what we proclaim at Easter. It is a season of life and hope, of repentance and renewal. This week in the Eastern Orthodox world it is Holy Week, the greatest time for repentance. Muslims are in Ramadan, a time for purification and change, coming to Eid. Jews celebrate the Passover and liberation. Let this be a time for Russian ceasefire, withdrawal and a commitment to talks. This is a time for resetting the ways of peace, not for what Bismarck called blood and iron. Let Christ prevail! Let the darkness of war be banished.

And this season is also why there are such serious ethical questions about sending asylum seekers overseas. The details are for politics and politicians. The principle must stand the judgement of God and it cannot. It cannot carry the weight of resurrection justice, of life conquering death. It cannot carry the weight of the resurrection that was first to the least valued, for it privileges the rich and strong. And it cannot carry the weight of our national responsibility as a country formed by Christian values, because sub-contracting out our responsibilities, even to a country that seeks to do well like Rwanda, is the opposite of the nature of God who himself took responsibility for our failures.

Through the historical reality of the resurrection of Jesus, God gives our lives purpose and our society resilience. God calls nations to live in the knowledge of God's love through Jesus, springing up in us by the gift of God's Spirit as permanent place of refreshing in dry places, and hope in dark places. That is true global power.

More than that, the resurrection, in its conquest of death, promises each individual a life that is abundant and will overflow into eternity.

It promises each nation, and every victim and survivor, that the injustices, cruelties, evil deeds and soulless institutions of this world do not have the last word.

That last word is God's victory shout, the offer of life as possession, of a death sentence for the wickedness of this world, of justice against the evildoer. None will escape justice, and all are offered mercy where there is true repentance, sorrow for sin and surrender to Christ.

Jesus is alive – and he addresses head on all of our fears, together and alone. It means whilst we wake in a world so often characterised by pain and suffering, there is another more defining, more compelling, more true story to wake up to.

It is not complicated to receive the gift of the life of Christ. It costs no more than to surrender our lives to God, lives we cannot keep. In that surrender we join the journey into life everlasting, we are caught in his hands as was Mary who returned to the disciples saying "I have seen the Lord". Jesus' resurrection, dead first, now alive, changed history. It changed societies, shaped nations. It calls us each to live resurrection shaped and filled lives now, and to mould resurrection filled societies in our world today and in the future.

(This sermon was read by many commentators and reported in most of the newspapers, so seems very worthy of inclusion here)
